

A SUNSET TAKES 7 MINUTES 2005

single channel video, 16mm on DVD

16:05 min

“A sunset takes 7 minutes” is set up on the roof of a building in Berlin. A group of young people is gathered, watching the setting sun while chatting and drinking. The camera makes a slow 360° turn, panning the city landscape and the people on the roof, grasping a few fragments of their conversations. The whole scene repeats itself and the only thing changing is the setting sun and the slowly disappearing sunlight on the people’s faces. It looks like the group is caught in a moment of time, while everything else is moving onwards.

